

Name of the subject: Labour Economics

Degree/study: Grau en Economía

Course: 3rd/4th Course

Term: 3rd Term

Number of ECTS credits: 5

Hours of student's dedication: 125

Language or languages of instruction: English

Professor: Albrecht Glitz

1. Presentation of the subject

This course provides an overview of the main concepts of modern labour economics, including labour supply, labour demand, the human capital model, compensating wage differentials, discrimination, wage inequality, unemployment, unions, immigration and trade. The course focuses both on the theories that have been developed to understand the functioning of the labour market, and on the empirical analysis and evaluation of labour market relevant public policies.

2. Competences to be attained

Students will acquire knowledge about the key factors driving labour market outcomes in today's globalized world. They will learn how the specific incentives of the main players in the labour market – individual workers, firms, unions and the government – determine their interactions and how these interactions translate into aggregate labour market indicators. Students will also be able to critically assess the important role of public policy in the labour market context.

Specific competencies to be attained: G1, G2, G7, G9, G10, E2, G13, G18 and G19.

Weeks 9: Labour Market Experiment

Week 10: Discussion Written Reports

4. Assessment

The final grade will consist of three components:

1. The final exam (50%).
2. Problem sets to be assigned in class (30%).
3. Written reports (in groups) (20%).

To pass the overall course, you need at least a grade of 40/100 in the final exam!

If you do not pass the exam, the grade reported in the system will be your overall grade (applying the weights above) unless this is equal or higher than 5, in which case the reported grade will be set to 4.9 (to indicate that you have not passed the course).

There will be a resit exam in July (9th and 11th). Grades for problem sets and written reports will continue to count for the final grade after the resit exam. Minimum requirement in the resit exam to pass the overall course is 40/100.

5. Bibliography and teaching resources
