2. Introduction to the subject

The main purpose of the course is to investigate the influence of historical context on firms and entrepreneurial actions, to analyse the transformation of the internal structure of companies in the long run and to study the consequences of their strategies on economic growth.

Within the economics and business field, the subject applies concepts and theoretical models gained from this and from other courses to companies' behaviour and its transformation in the long run.

Combining lectures with practical seminars and case discussions, Historia de la Empresa particularly devotes lot of time to key topics such as:

- the dynamics of continuity and discontinuity that affect entrepreneurial choices from a comparative and dynamic perspective;
- the impact of variables like space, time, culture, and technology on companies' shapes;
- the role played by national systems in providing opportunities and putting constraints on entrepreneurs and enterprises';
- the identification and management of crucial phases in the growth and development path of companies in the long run.

3. Competencies the subject aims to teach

Part 2. The company during the First Industrial Revolution

Part 3. The company during the Second Industrial Revolution

Part 4. Heterogeneous experiences between World War I and World War II

Part 5. From the Golden Age to the crisis of the large industrial corporation

Part 6. From managerial capitalism to entrepreneurial capitalism

5. Evaluation

The evaluation of the subject is embedded in a process of continuous testing of knowledge of the content and the capabilities of the students.

To this end, the evaluation of the subject is based on the following two components:

- 1) Seminars and continuous assessment (40% of the final mark):
 - a) active participation in seminars (15%)
 - b) test in the middle of the course: maximum (10%)
 - c) team work (15%)
- 2) Final exam: it will include all the course content and will represent 60% of the final mark.

Students who obtain a final mark of less than 5/10 points or less than 4/10 in seminars or in the final exam will have failed the subject and will have to re-sit the exam during the second term.

Students who fail to reach the threshold (4/10) in the first part (seminars and continuous assessment) will have to take an oral exam on the seminars' content.

Students who fail to reach the threshold (4/10) in the second part (final exam) will have to take a written exam on all the course content.

Students who fail to reach a final mark of 5/10 will have to take a written exam on all the course content.

The subsequent final mark will be the average of the mark obtained in the re-examination and of the marks obtained in the parts that had already been assessed.
